WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- North winds will develop again over Northern California starting Wednesday and that will once again bring an increase in fire weather danger.
- Critical Fire Weather conditions will be possible Thursday night through Saturday morning across the mountains of Los Angeles and Ventura counties, as well as the Santa Barbara County mountains and south coast. These areas are under a Fire Weather Watch during this time due to the potential for north winds gusting between 30 and 45 mph, coupled with very dry conditions (humidities lowering to between 5 and 15 percent) and very dry fuels. If fire ignition occurs, there will be the potential for rapid fire spread and extreme fire behavior, which would lead to a threat to life and property.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

 "High Risk" conditions for a weaker N to NE wind event and low Relative Humidity (RH) Wednesday and Thursday in the Sacramento Valley/Foothills area ***

 Very dry air mass will linger over much of Northern California through early next week ***

"High Risk" Significant Fire Potential has been designated for the Sacramento Valley/Foothills (NC05) Wednesday and Thursday due to moderately strong N to NE wind and low RH. Peak gusts to 30 mph possible in wind prone areas. Some light precipitation will be possible across the far north with humidity increases during this period.

Another drier inland trough passage is expected Fri/Sat and could induce, yet another, northerly wind event for the Sacramento Valley and Foothills Predictive Services Area (PSA). A "High Risk" for significant fire potential will be possible then. Light precipitation would once again be possible far the far north. Remaining dry Sunday and Monday with lighter wind speeds.

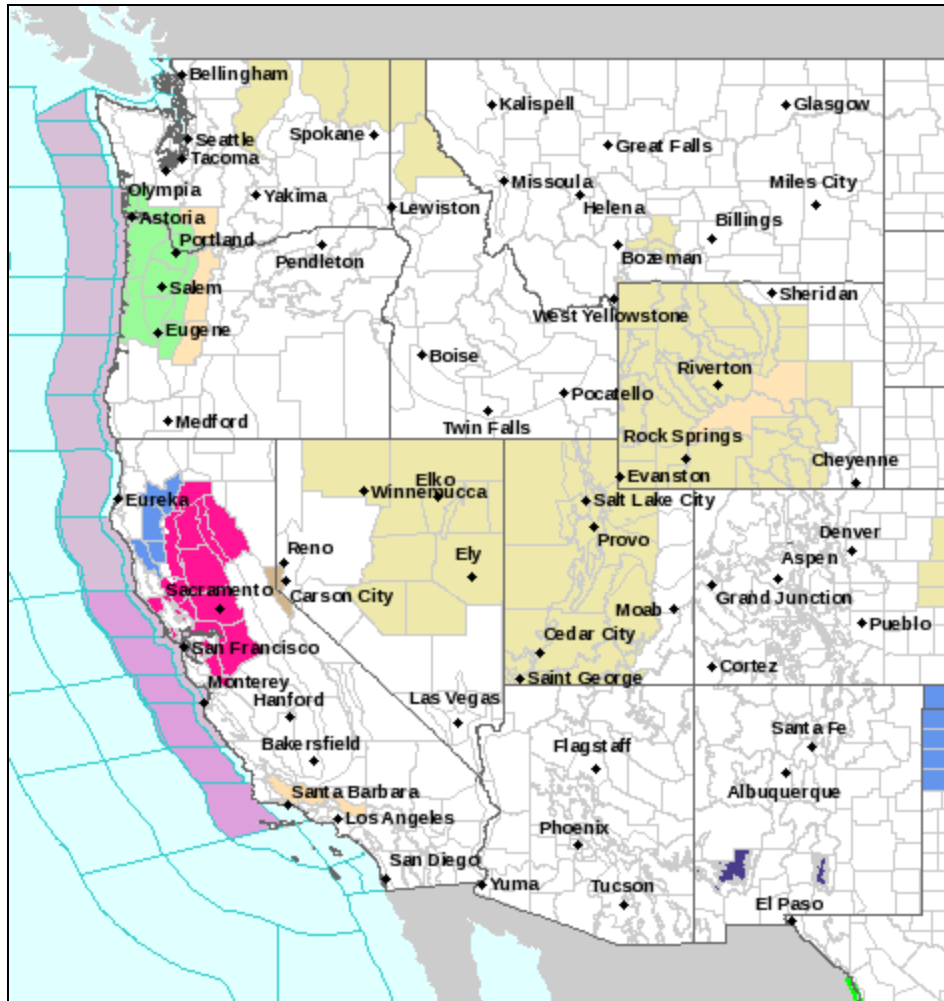

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Breezy north winds Wednesday through Friday, followed by weak offshore winds this weekend

Look for cooler and more humid conditions Wednesday along with light winds. Wednesday and Thursday, a pair of troughs will slide into the Great Basin which will generate locally gusty winds later this week. Late Wednesday night and again Thursday night, local north winds of 15-25 mph with occasional higher gusts will be possible across Santa Barbara County and the I-5 Corridor. The central coast may also see northwest winds of 15-25 mph each afternoon beginning Thursday. Pressure gradients will turn offshore Friday night into the weekend, but at this time, gradients look to be much weaker than during Monday's offshore event. As a result, offshore winds this weekend will not match what occurred yesterday and wind speeds look to remain in the 15-30 mph range for the most part. But it will turn much warmer again this weekend with highs reaching 90 in the valleys and lower foothills Saturday and Sunday. Minimum RH will likely approach the single digits once again during the afternoon hour Saturday and Sunday. Cooler, onshore flow may return early next week.
